ROCHESTER, NEW YORK

To A World of Science

Spring 1947

Dear Students:

Science now seems to be the major factor in shaping the world we live in. The direction in which the continuing development of scientific principles will lead us depends to a large extent upon the character and high purpose of the high school graduates of today and tomorrow. This should be a sobering thought.

About fifty per cent of the youth of America are graduates of high schools and so the average American as far as education is concerned has a secondary school education. An individual has personality and personality is made up of personal characteristics. If the average American is to have the foresight and the leadership and the judgment to direct the path which the development of science should take, then the personal characteristics of the individual are of paramount importance.

Are you just an average individual? Even to be average some of your personal characteristics must be above average for some are probably below. Make a searching analysis of yourself; which characteristics of yours need to be brought up to the average?

How dependable a person are you? Are you a consistent worker? . . . How about your adaptability? Can you easily get along with others? Can you adapt yourself to any situation in which you are placed? . . . How much initiative have you? Can you think for yourself? Are you a self-starter? Do you see things to be done and do them? . . . Are you willing to work? Have you developed perseverance or when things get busy do you run away? Could you be classified as a drifter? . . . Are you honest? Can your word be depended upon? . . . What about your emotional stability? Are you touchy? . . . How about your physical health? Are you vigorous and active?

A high school graduate should be able and willing to assume his share of individual responsibility. Are you ready?

Sincerely yours,
ELMER W. SNYDER

Some men of science think in terms of hate,
Experiment with vehicles of woe;
Their evil genius to annihilate
Works equally as well on friend as foe.
But men like you will always generate
The spark of reason, coax it to a glow
In preparation for some future date
When we will need its noble flame to show
A weary world the good now buried deep
In formulas designed but to destroy.
Man then can wake from out his nightmare sleep
Where he used science as a lethal toy,
And to his ancient griefs will say goodbye,
Because you taught us how to live, not die.

Diagnosticians of Students' Woes

Throughout the year Miss Turula and Mr. Goetz helped many eighth and ninth graders adjust themselves to high school life. Arranging schedules, advising the legislature, and disciplining pupils were some of their major problems. Many students' difficulties were solved by their patient understanding.

Even though much of the work of Miss Turula and Mr. Goetz was conducted quietly in their junior laboratories, their efforts helped keep school affairs turning smoothly.

Technicians in Human Relations

Mrs. Barry and Mr. Friel acted as laboratory technicians in human relations; they analyzed and solved problems of students and helped give them the necessary materials for a successful experiment in living. Juniors were advised on required courses and credits for graduation. Seniors were given data on colleges and business schools best suited to individual careers. In addition, both Mrs. Barry and Mr. Friel guided the executive council, helping them to reach their goal of worthy school leadership.

The Rocky Road to Einstein

Under the capable guidance of the mathematics teachers, many students took advantage of the numerous classes.

While the freshmen were busy with their elementary algebra problems, the studious seniors were pondering over formulae and propositions of Solid Geometry.

To understand better our changing times and their backgrounds in the rise and fall of nations, students participated in social studies classes such as World and American History. To supplement their classroom studies, some of the pupils of the Problems of Democracy classes took field trips to the penitentiary, State Hospital, Police Headquarters, and City Court where conditions were studied first hand.

This year the Business Department offered a wide scope of subjects for the career-minded students.

Fundamental operations of typewriters, dictaphones, and calculating machines were taught under the guidance of our able teachers.

Many senior girls, desiring practical experience, took advantage of the co-operative office practice course, which enabled them to go into business offices for part of the day. Practical training was also offered through the student secretarial positions in the school.

"Salve!" "Buenos dias!" "Comment allez-vous?" The Spanish, French, and Latin classes jargoned along. Miss Turula taught her first French I class; the Spanish Club had a Christmas party complete with piñata; while the decemviri of the Virgil class got together with the Cicero class for a Saturnalia.

Despite the fact that the seniors took first aid this year and were constantly looking for victims, Mrs. Rausch was kept busy treating a variety of ailments. With her usual kindness and skill, she gave expert care and counsel to all.

Helping the students and the school was the primary purpose of Mr. Tennity and his staff. Besides maintaining a clean and warm school, the crew also assisted students in hanging decorations for social affairs and in placing posters for coming events.

The lunchroom staff, under the capable direction of Mrs. Burdick, did an excellent job in trying to quench our desires for something delicious, delectable, and nourishing. Despite the recent shortages, their culinary capers managed to provide nutritious, well-balanced meals with that dash of variety that aroused latent appetites.

Football

Showing plenty of grit and determination, a fairly successful Marshall football team finished the 1946 season with two wins, one tie, and three losses.

Coach Bushnell turned out one of the heaviest lines in the interscholastic league.

The Orange and Blue started the season by rolling over East, 25-12, and ended the season by whipping Monroe 13-0. During the season the Orange and Blue battled Charlotte to a 6-6 tie for the second time in just as many years, and lost to Jefferson, West, and Madison respectively.

There were many outstanding players on the team, but probably outstanding was Bill Osborne, who seemed always able to connect with end George Spain. Gus Beatty, Paul Ladd, and Jim Smith supplied most of the team's driving power, while quarterback Max Davis produced the trickery that many times confused the rival team.

Next year Coach Bushnell will get back many veterans from the 1946 team including Gus Beatty and Bob Miller, both of whom showed promise in the backfield.

Nine Stars in Pursuit of a Sphere

The Marshall baseball team had a better-than-average season last spring, landing fourth in league standings with a record of five wins and three losses, and two triumphs over one setback in non-loop tilts.

Noteworthy on the squad were Larry Becker, outstanding hitter, outfielder, and relief pitcher; Len Hackshaw, third baseman and power hitter; Max Davis, pitcher; Moe Volzer, catcher; Bill Farrell, Larry Siverd, and first sacker Jim Smith.

The highlights of the season were a non-loop lacing of Aquinas 15-2, with Larry Becker taking mound honors, and a sparkling 12-3 triumph over the Green and White of Charlotte in the final league contest.

Denizens of H₂O

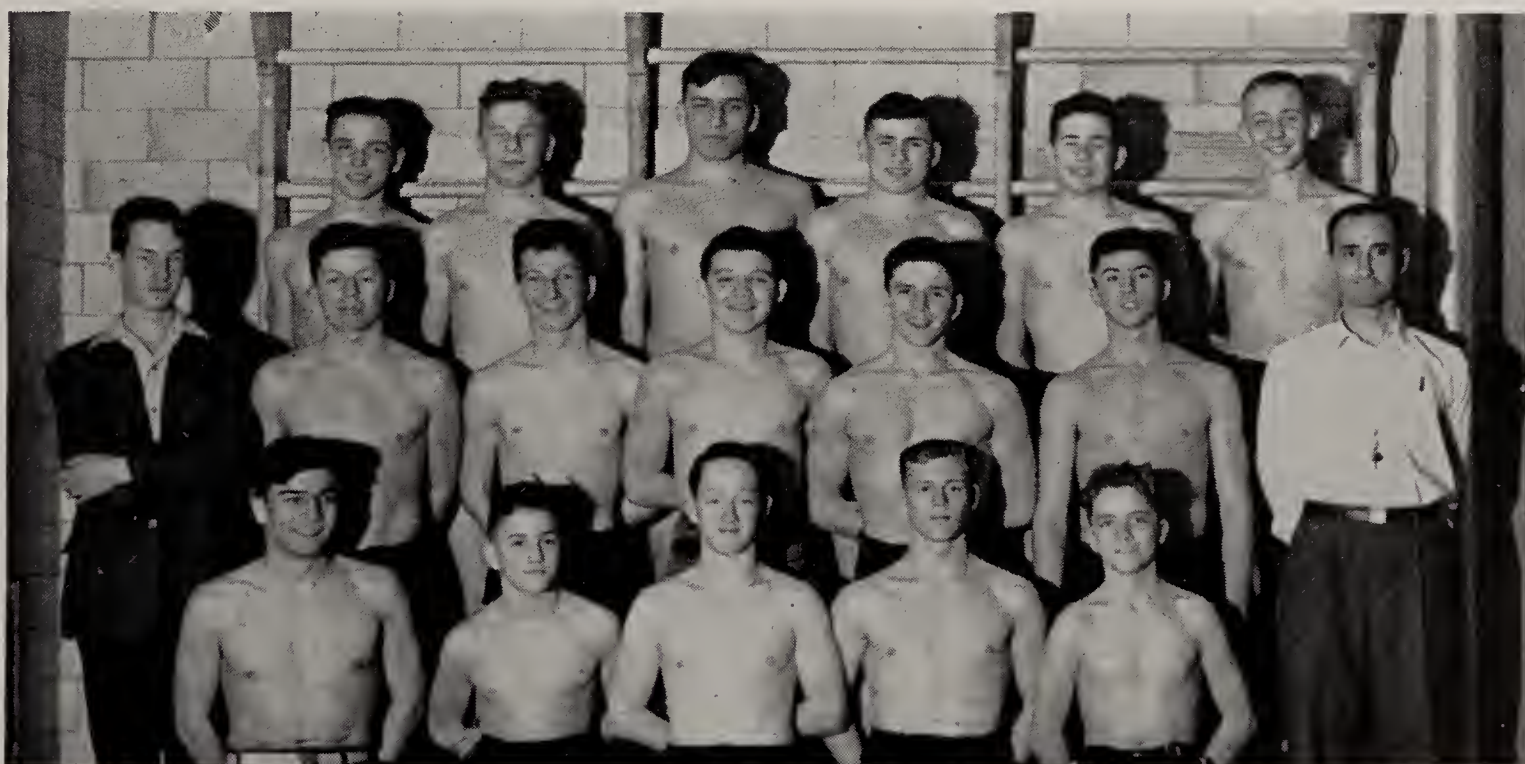

John Marshall's swimming team, under the skillful supervision of Anthony Gerace, walked off with its sixth straight city-sectional championship this year by swamping all opponents in eight league meets and dominating the sectionals, capturing six of the eight firsts and four seconds.

Buddy Mayfield registered his fourth straight sectional crown in diving, setting a new sectional record of 149.3 points.

Tom Schaefer captured first in the 50 yard free style, while his brother, Bob, repeated in the 100. Fourth individual first was taken by Don Laurer in the 220 yard free style.

The relay teams also took firsts as the smooth combination of Don Laurer, Tom Schaefer, Bob Schaefer, and John Schaefer swept first in the 220 yard free style relay, and Joe McGuckin, Dick Schaefer, and Kurt Hofsas did the same in the 150 yard medley relay.

Monroe took the other two firsts as Jack Howell and Gordon Donohue defeated Dick Schaefer and Joe McGuckin respectively.

Handicapped by the return of only three of last year's veterans, the Orange and Blue cagers suffered twelve setbacks out of sixteen tries, winning over Jefferson and West in the first half and East and Jefferson in the second. Leading assets among the Coach Dowling-tutored speedsters were Paul Ladd, Phil Morton, Larry Siverd, and Marv Wolff, the first three being the high scorers and Paul Ladd an all-around reliable courtster.

Mass x Velocity = Momentum

Goal = The Speed of Light

Losing only to Edison, Madison, and East, the Marshall track team under Coach Bushnell captured third place in interscholastic competition.

In their first meet, the team took six firsts and four seconds, giving them 55.5 points for first place.

A powerful East team won the second meet by amassing 59 points. Marshall's 33 placed them in second, above West.

Capturing four firsts and five seconds, the trackmen were downed by a scant two points as Madison collected 55, Marshall 53, and Charlotte 10.

Edison Tech, city champions, took the final meet while Marshall again placed second.

Outstanding team members were Gene Weiss who finished in a three-way tie in the sectionals in the pole vault; Charles Jackson, who took second in the 440; and Dick Bedford, who captured a third in the 220 low hurdles.

Conquerors of Space

The Marshall cross country team, under the leadership of Coach Wright, took three seconds and one third in 1946.

At the first meet, September 27, the runners gained third against East and Madison. The team finished second against Franklin and West October 4, again against Charlotte and Edison October 11, and against Jefferson and Monroe October 18.

Marshall took part in the Varsity and Reserve Interscholastic meet October 24, and the District V Sectional Championship meet at Hobart.

Participating were Keith Davis, Dick Fortman, Bob Lowdar, Bob McFadden, Bob Smith, Paul Ulmschnieder, and Larry Wheeler.

Portrait of the Law of Falling Bodies

The John Marshall wrestling team, under the mentorship of Coach Beisman, gained a record of four wins against four defeats in the 1947 campaign. The thriller meet of the season was a one point triumph of Madison, 22-21.

Force X Distance = Goal

Having lost all but two of last year's varsity, an inexperienced Orange and Blue Soccer team dropped all but one game through an inability to score when the points were most needed.

The Madison team, which took the sectional crown, won the first game with a lone goal, and the Marshall team didn't capture a victory until their fourth game with Jeff.

Jim Shannon was the most outstanding member of the team, as he scored fourteen points during the season. Bud Mayfield and Chuck Vanderzell each scored two to make a total of eighteen points.

Gym Work

This past year the gym classes tried to improve the girls' co-ordination and keep them physically fit. The year was started with baseball, soccer, and games that improved skills. Routine exercises kept the nurse busy applying liniment to strained muscles. Apparatus work with the horse, buck, and parallel bars gave the students a real work out.

When spring rolled around and the girls craved fresh air and sunshine, they were taken outdoors to try their skill at batting home runs. Along with these many interesting activities the femmes learned to swim properly.

Girls from gym classes represented Marshall in various tournaments at many different schools. The girls received expert guidance from their friendly teachers, Miss Holcombe, Miss O'Connor, and Miss Pruner.

Leaders' Club

Taking attendance, demonstrating class work, and coaching the beginners in swimming were only a few of the tasks which the leaders accomplished competently.

The girls, clad in their becoming white suits, learned the many trials of a gym teacher. They were taught every Friday night in the girls' gym in preparation for the next week's work. Mrs. Holcombe was aided in this project by Joan Caprio, club manager.

The Female of the Species is

Basketball

The girls' gym was busy on Monday nights when the girls met to play basketball. It was lots of fun to play a fast game of basketball with the friendly spirit of teamwork prevailing. Miss Pruner helped the girls to learn the correct rules, field shots, foul shots, and general technique. Joan Caprio was the manager of this club.

Bowling

The sewer balls and splits soon turned to spares and strikes as our bowling teams became more experienced. Every Friday night six teams of five girls each journeyed to the Ridge Bowling Alleys. The girls really enjoyed themselves. Besides the entertainment and exercise the girls received, they were given many pointers by Miss O'Connor. The manager was Estelle Weimer.

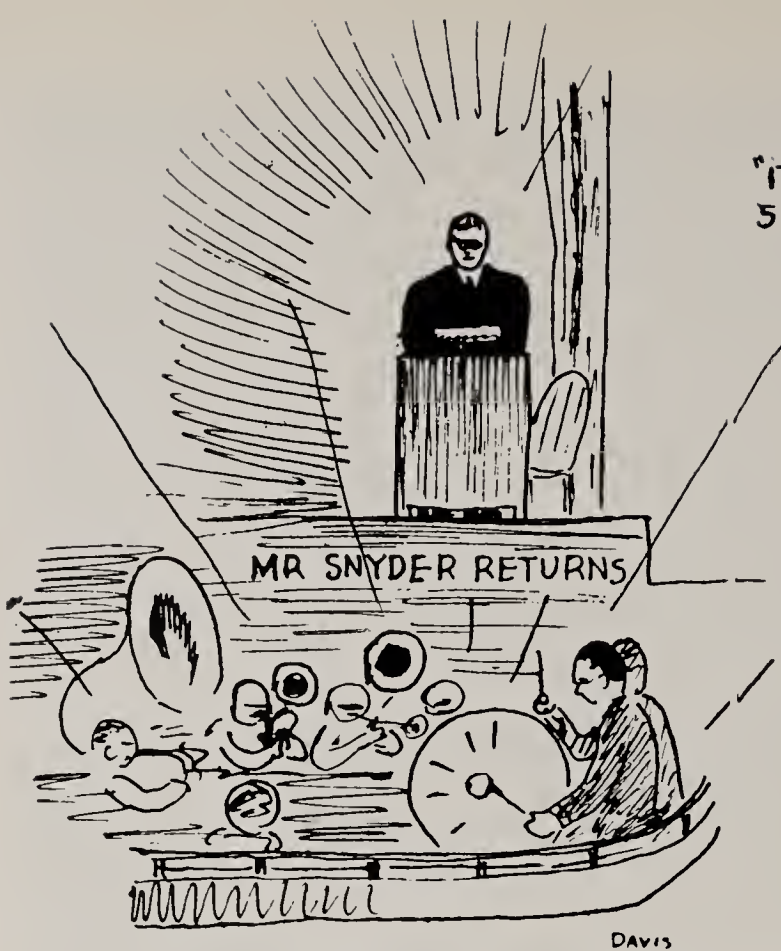

Badminton

"There must be a hole in this racket," was a cry frequently heard in the girls' gym every Wednesday night at the beginning of the year. It seemed impossible that anyone could miss the bird so often. Some of the girls were worried, but Miss Pruner soon helped them separate the pure elements of badminton from the unauthentic beginner's attempts. In a short time all the girls were playing tournaments in a professional manner. Estelle Weimer was the manager.

Marshall's governing organizations, headed by the Students' Association officers, and composed of the Executive Council and Legislature, completed another year of substantial success. Through the Executive Council's social affairs commission, the year was high-lighted by the Second Annual Dungaree Frolic, two Rouser dances in conjunction with Charlotte, a continuance of class parties, Students' Association assemblies, and a Spring Dance. In addition to planning social affairs and reviewing miscellaneous problems, the Executive Council's main actions were the making of plans for an efficient lunchroom system, passing an appropriation bill that enabled the Docket to publish a greater number of pictures, and the instituting of a courtesy campaign early in the spring.

Executive Council

The Legislature, meanwhile, under Vice-President Max Davis, was instrumental in conducting many campaigns. This schedule included campaigns for Students' Association membership, the Red Cross, the Memorial Scholarship Fund, the March of Dimes, and John Quill subscriptions.

The National Honor Society

To be elected to the National Honor Society a student must be in the upper fourth of his class; he must be voted for by his fellow candidates; he must have his teachers' approval; and he must be fairly active in school affairs.

The John Marshall chapter of the National Honor Society has been greatly helped by its sponsor, Miss Mayo. Each year the members elect their officers and present some sort of entertainment for the new members. The officers were Linda Fabry, President, and Bob Stoll, Treasurer.

Then the individual ratings were entered in a ledger. From this record the Honor Roll and Honorable Mention awards were taken.

A Pure Distilla

The Junior Choir, under the leadership of Miss McCabe, operated under a new procedure this year. The members were selected from Miss McCabe's classes, which brought the membership down to about eighty-five. Instead of meeting every day, they assembled in Room 403 every Wednesday after school. Their appearance in assembly, early in the second term, was very successful, and the program was enjoyed by all.

tion of Melody

The melodic line of this year's school harmony was beautifully handled by the largest Senior Choir in several years. With the help of the officers, Urban Verstring, President; Pat Janes, Secretary; Dave Felker, Vice-President and Treasurer; June Burlingame, Wardrobe Mistress; and Bob Stoll, Historian, they completed several very successful programs.

Such pieces as "Night and Day," "Begin the Beguine," and "The Night Before Christmas," were especially enjoyed by both the choir and its numerous audiences.

Veterans in the Science of Page Makeup

With printer's ink flowing through their veins the Docket Staff, led for the two semesters by Linda Fabry and Dick Schaefer respectively, earnestly undertook the perplexing task of publishing the school paper.

Possessing a knack for unearthing possible news items, the editors distributed the stories for coverage among their reporters, members of the eleventh grade Journalism class. With a little coaxing and tactful praise the stories were received in time for make-up on Monday. Undoubtedly this was the most hectic day for the whole staff, for often they worked until 6 o'clock in their "pressroom," racking their brains for ideas. Following the proofreading on Thursday, the paper was despatched to the printer; then with crossed fingers the staff awaited the delivery on Friday.

From the Docket the students obtained information about school happenings and suggestions for improving both the school building and school spirit. Every community drive, every school event received active support and encouragement from the Docket.

DOCKET SECOND TERM

Standing: R. Slater, C. Adams, S. Bizub, L. Goldman, A. Salatino, C. Young, M. Ebel, L. Stone, M. Lohler, E. Lammel. Seated: R. Conrad, L. Fabry, R. Schaefer, Mr. Jenkins, R. Stoll.

Interpreters of School News

Marshall activities were publicized in the community through the efforts of the Press Bureau headed by Doris Blake and Constance Young, first- and second-term editors respectively. Under the leadership of Mr. Thayer, they and their assistants were solely responsible for sending news to the Tenth Ward Courier and the Democrat and Chronicle each week.

An eleventh grade English class, which was taught by Mr. Jenkins, devoted much time to the study of journalism and comprised the reporters whose duty it was to meet the Monday deadline for all Docket copy. The experience gained by these students will enable them more adequately to fill the positions open to them in their senior year as Docket editors.

The Cavorting Amplifiers

"Marshall, Marshall, Fight, Team, Fight!" was a familiar cry of the Marshall cheerleaders. These ten lads and lassies, dressed in their traditional orange and blue uniforms, were on the job at every game, bolstering the spirits of the spectators as well as the team.

They established a new precedent by cheering at the baseball games as well as at the football and basketball games.

Electric Circuit of Harmony

The Marshall Band, under the baton of Mr. Geschwind, its director, provided musical entertainment for fellow classmates on many important occasions. On February fifth Marshallites were very much pleased with the band's annual assembly at which it showed its versatility by rendering two outstanding selections, "The Overture to the New World Symphony" and "The Three Bears." The band played at basketball games, at an Infantile Paralysis Benefit, and for many other affairs.

Although the orchestra was not able to participate in public because of an insufficient number of players, it deserved a great deal of credit as both the students and Mr. Geschwind worked hard.

Test Tube of Musical Culture

There was at John Marshall last year a newly organized group supervised by Mr. Harold Singleton. This organization was known as The Music Appreciation Club, and was the result of Thomas Burke's effort to interest Marshall students in good music. Each Wednesday afternoon the members assembled to study the lives of composers and their works. The mediums used were records, films, talent of various members, and informal talks. This organization, which consisted of twenty-five students who were all interested in some field of music, proved to be a very enjoyable experience.

Nerves tense, all eyes on the clock, two seconds before—"On the Air." This was a frequent experience for the thirteen members of Marshall's Senior Radio Workshop. Aside from their many school presentations and the weekly "Marshall Unlimited" program, they made numerous visits to WHAM, WHEC, and WSAY.

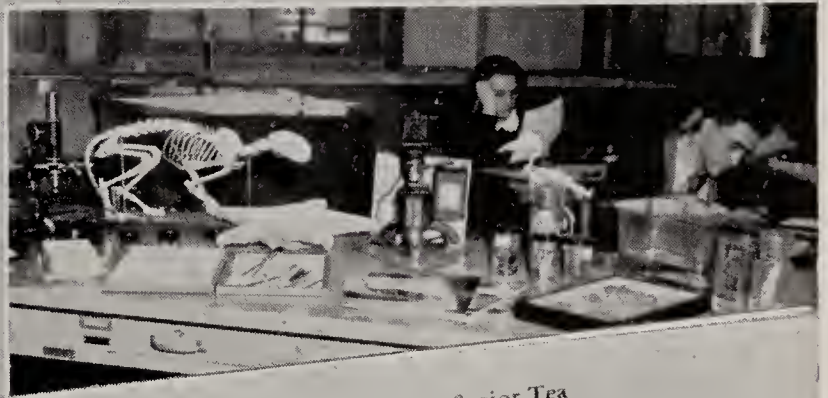

Under the superb direction of Mrs. Saunders they were introduced to the many specialized jobs in the vast field of radio. They were also drilled on the essentials of diction and enunciation.

The highlight of the year was the Christmas broadcast of "Hansel and Gretel" with the Rochester Civic Orchestra.

At Marshall, in the southwest wing,
Down near the Ridgeway door;
You'll find a gang that can't be beat,
226, on the second floor.

Now twenty boys are a noisy bunch,
To try to get things done;
But fifteen girls keep up with them
To help share in the fun.

We come and go in Home Room,
After third we set the pace;
But Monday in the seventh,
You'd think we owned the place!

Four years we've been together,
Next year's Seniors we will be;
If you doubt we've earned the title,
Just step around and see!

But there's one thing that we're bragging,
Which just shows we're "on the ball"
We subscribed to this year's John Quill,
The whole gang, thirty-five in all.

You Get The Best Bargain Right In Your Own Home

No where do you get value like the electric service you enjoy at home. Cozy lighting, soft music are yours for pennies. Electricity is a servant that works day and night for your comfort and convenience. It does dozens of jobs that save time and work for the whole family.

And yet—the cost of electricity is very little. It is the one item in your budget that keeps going down instead of up.
